INSTALL ELECTRICAL

Circuit using 3- way and 4- way switches in 3 locations

4-Way Switches

Four-way switches are used to control lighting from three or more locations. Four-way switches are used in combination with three-way switches. There are four terminals that provide two sets of toggle positions on a four-way switch. Each set of terminals is one of the toggle positions. When the switch is in the up position, the current can flow through two terminals. In the down position, the current flows through the other two terminals. Many times, four-way switches will come with two brass-colored terminal screws and two darker-colored terminal screws. A green ground terminal is also on a four-way switch.

Wiring a 4 Way Switch with Light at the End

In this basic 4 way light circuit, 3-wire cable runs between all the switches and 2-wire cable runs from the last switch to the light.

The electrical source is at the first 3 way switch and the hot wire connects to the common there. The circuit neutral is spliced at each switch box through to the light fixture using the white wire. The black and red wires running between the boxes are connected to the travelers on each switch. The common terminal on the 3 way switch at the end of the circuit connects to the black wire running to the hot terminal on the light.

Take note that the traveler wires from SW1 are connected to the T1 pair on the 4 way switch and the travelers going to SW2 are connected to the T2 pair. Each pair of traveler terminals on the 4 way must be connected to only one 3 way switch. Don't mix up the pairs or the circuit will not work properly.

4 Way Switch Wiring with Light First

This diagram illustrates wiring for a 4 way circuit with the electrical source at the light fixture and the switches coming after. Two-wire cable is run from the light to SW1 and 3-wire cable runs between the three switches. The source neutral wire is connected directly to the light fixture and the hot is spliced to the white cable wire running to SW1. At SW1 it's spliced to the white wire running to the 4 way switch box where it's spliced to the white wire running to common terminal on SW2. The white wire is marked with black at each splice to identify it as hot.

At SW1, the common terminal is connected to the black wire running to the light fixture hot terminal. The black and red wires running between the switches are used to connect the travelers on each switch.
