Changing Minds Or Changing Channels Partisan News:

Changing Minds or Changing Channels? Kevin Arceneaux, Martin Johnson, 2022-12-22 We live in an age of media saturation where with a few clicks of the remote or mouse we can tune in to programming where the facts fit our ideological predispositions. But what are the political consequences of this vast landscape of media choice? Partisan news has been roundly castigated for reinforcing prior beliefs and contributing to the highly polarized political environment we have today, but there is little evidence to support this claim and much of what we know about the impact of news media comes from studies that were conducted at a time when viewers chose from among six channels rather than scores. Through a series of innovative experiments, Kevin Arceneaux and Martin Johnson show that such criticism is unfounded. Americans who watch cable news are already polarized and their exposure to partisan programming of their choice has little influence on their political positions. In fact, the opposite is true: viewers become more polarized when forced to watch programming that opposes their beliefs. A much more troubling consequence of the ever-expanding media environment, the authors show, is that it has allowed people to tune out the news: the four top-rated partisan news programs draw a mere three percent of the total number of people watching television. Overturning much of the conventional wisdom, Changing Minds or Changing Channels demonstrates that the strong effects of media exposure found in past research are simply not applicable in today's more saturated media landscape. Mass Media and American Politics Johanna Dunaway, Doris A. Graber, 2022-02-13 A comprehensive, trusted core text on media's impact on attitudes, behavior, elections, politics, and policymaking. Mass Media and American Politics is known for its readable introduction to the literature and theory of the field and for staying current with each new edition on issues of new and social media, media ownership, the regulatory environment, infotainment, and war-time reporting. Written by the late Doris Graber, a scholar who has played an enormous role in establishing and shaping the field of mass media and American politics, and now led by Johanna Dunaway, this book has set the standard for the course. New to this edition: Extensive coverage of political misinformation, the role of changing communication technologies, and mass media more generally are playing in its consumption and dissemination, as well as how the press is handling and should handle reporting on political misinformation, especially as it pertains to the presidency elections and crises like COVID-19. Updated coverage of the role social media and other popular digital platforms are playing, or not playing, in the effort to stop the spread of mis- and disinformation on their platforms, with special attention to both foreign and domestic efforts to use these platforms to incite violence, cause confusion, and/or encourage distrust in democratic institutions. Expanded treatment of rising affective social and ideological polarization in politics, with a special focus on whether and how mass media are contributing to these forms of polarization. New updates on causes and consequences of expanding news deserts, declining local news, and rampant growth of hedge fund media ownership. Up-to-date coverage of what researchers are learning about the implications of growth in digital social and mobile media use. What does it mean for attention to news and politics?
